

CLINIMINDS CONDUCTS CLINICAL RESEARCH TRAINING FOR NATIONAL INSTITUTES OF HEALTH, UNITED STATES

Cliniminds has recently been awarded contract to conduct clinical research training for the NIH, US funded projects in India. Cliniminds conducted the first two day training program for the senior investigators and site personnel from the various NIH funded project sites in India.

This is the first time NIH has outsourced these clinical research training program from any Indian company.

This was two-day training program covered wide range of issues, including ICH GCP Principles, regulatory issues, documentation, conduct and management of clinical trials, subject recruitment and retention, adverse event reporting, quality assurance and number of other topics.

Program was highly successful and has been rated at the average of 9 at the scale of 10 by the participants.

Mr. Joseph P. Shott, Quality Assurance Specialist, International Research, NIH US, who attended the entire program said that "program and content was perfect for the staff".

With this program Cliniminds has further strengthened its image as a highest quality clinical research training provider in the region.
